Even though it sometimes feels like Winter will never end, Spring will be here before we know it (whether you believe the groundhog or not). That means that we also need to change our thinking from frozen thoughts to severe weather preparations. Knowing that it only takes one bad weather day to significantly change a life, it makes sense to be as prepared as possible before the sky turns dark.

One important step is to learn everything you can about how storms form and how to identify those “red flags” that tell you it’s time to take action. The annual “Storm Fury on the Plains” presentations are a fun and interesting way to get that information — and if you’ve attended this before, it can be a great refresher to get you in the storm safety mindset.

This program is open to the public and offered free of charge. No pre-registration is required. If you are interested in learning more about severe weather in Kansas, make plans now to join us!
